North Island and South Island

- 1 New Zealand is made up of two big islands, North Island and South Island, and about 600 smaller islands. These islands didn't have any contact with other continents for over 60 million years, so some plants and animals are only found there. Before people arrived, the land was covered in forests
- 5 which were full of reptiles, spiders, insects and birds which were not able to fly. There were almost no mammals on land until the first Maori settlers arrived in the 13th century.

- 10 Over the centuries the settlers hunted birds and also brought mammals to New Zealand. Many bird species that couldn't fly died out because the settlers cut down a lot of forests. There are, of course, still many native birds in New Zealand. The kiwi is probably the most famous. This round, brown bird is very shy, only comes out at night and can't fly, but it has still become an important symbol of New Zealand.

INTERNET

Dear Agony Aunt,
My best friend spends all his free time playing computer games. He doesn't spend much time with me any more. I feel lonely! What should I do? Many thanks, Mike

Read the post on an internet forum and write a reply with your advice. (Lösungsvorschlag)

Dear Mike,

If I were you, I'd talk to your friend about your feelings. People who play computer games often don't notice how much time they really spend playing and that their friends miss them. You could play one of his games with him and then think about some other activities which you can do together. If you think he is addicted, you could also talk to his parents. Good luck!

- cat was there (scared, not hurt)

b) Write a heading for your article. Then write your article.

Girl finds cat after earthquake

A girl found her cat in Christchurch yesterday, one week after the terrible earthquake. When the earthquake happened on 22nd February 2011, Emily Miller's house collapsed and her cat ran away. Emily and her family left the area to stay with their grandparents. One week later Emily returned to the house to collect some things and found their cat. The cat was scared, but not hurt. "We lost our house in the earthquake, but we were really happy to find our cat!" said Emily.

Maori tattoo symbols

Maori tattoos are not just for fun. They all have important meanings connected to the person's tribe. For Maori people getting a tattoo is very spiritual and personal. Some of the most famous designs are:

The Pikorua (single twist) is a closed loop. It represents a strong connection between two people and their loyalty and friendship. The twist is a powerful statement of love.

The Koru has a spiral shape and shows a growing plant, the silver fern. It represents new life and new beginnings as well as personal growth and peace.

The Matua shows a fish hook. Traditionally the Maori were fishermen and their main food source was the sea. The hook is a symbol of wealth, good health and respect for the sea. It also provides good luck and safety while travelling on water.

The Tiki shows the the first man on earth who came from the stars. The Tiki brings good luck and keeps evil spirits away.

There are a lot more Maori designs available in our tattoo studios. Visit us in Wellington or Christchurch or check our website for the full catalogue. A tattoo design should be individual so our tattoo artists will help you to create a design that fits your personality and individuality.
