

Ziel 1: Ich kann Informationen über Neuseeland verstehen.

- 1 New Zealand is made up of two big islands, North Island and South Island, and about 600 smaller islands. These islands didn't have any contact with other continents for over 60 million years, so some plants and animals are only found there. Before people arrived, the land was covered in forests, which were full of reptiles, spiders, insects and birds, which could not fly. There were almost no mammals on land until the first Maori settlers arrived in the 13th century.

- 10 Over the centuries, the settlers hunted birds and also brought mammals to New Zealand. Many bird species that couldn't fly died out because the settlers cut down a lot of forests. There are, of course, still many native birds in New Zealand. The kiwi is probably the most famous. This round, brown bird is very shy, only comes out at night and can't fly, but it has still become an important symbol of New Zealand.

INTERNET

Dear Agony Aunt,
My best friend spends all his free time playing computer games. He doesn't spend much time with me any more. I feel lonely! What should I do? - Mike

Read the post on an internet forum and write a reply with your advice. (Lösungsvorschlag)

Dear Mike,

Why don't you talk to your friend about your feelings? People who play computer games often don't notice how much time they really spend playing and that their friends miss them. You could play one of his games with him and then think about some other activities which you can do together. If you think he is addicted, you could also talk to his parents. Good luck!

Girl finds cat after earthquake
When Emily Miller's house collapsed during the earthquake in Christchurch on 22nd February, 2011, her cat ran away. The family left to stay with Emily's grandparents.
One week later Emily went back to the house to collect some things and to look again for her cat. She found the cat there. It was thin but not hurt and everyone was happy.
