1. Check the size of the swap partition. The size should be at least 512 MB. Allocate more space to the partition if necessary.
2. If you have changed the settings, set them back to "default". To do this click on "options", "settings" and then "default settings".
3. Then you should check the status display of the device. The status should be "standby".
4. Now reconnect the USB cable to the computer. Everything should be working again.
