“Mr Watson – come here – I want to see you.” These were the first words that Alexander Graham Bell spoke through a telephone in Boston, USA. It was in 1876 when he invented this fantastic technology. Ten years later more than 150,000 people in the USA had a telephone at home. That was a lot because it was very expensive. But you can't compare the telephones then with the phones we have today. They were big and heavy so you couldn't walk around while you were talking. And of course there was nothing like the internet or apps that you could download. But Mr Bell was sure that one day the person at one end of the phone would be able to see the person at the other end. He was a clever man ...!

5 I can understand texts about social media.

Read what Susan writes about her use of social media.

About one year ago my older sister Meggie had a very hard time. She had a profile on a social network, but some girls wrote very bad things about her. For example, when Meggie posted a picture, they wrote very angry comments. It was really hard for her because it was so difficult to stop. In the end Meggie was so scared that she didn't want to leave the house! Finally she talked to our parents about her problem and that was the best thing she could do. They got very angry and went to see Meggie's class teacher the next day. He had lots of good advice and talked to the girls. From that day on they stopped writing their bad comments. That is why I don't use any social networks. I prefer face-to-face communication and meeting friends at home or at the mall. I'm a cheerleader in a very good team and we work very hard. I have got a phone, but I only use it to call my parents or when I want to arrange something.

Which sentences could she say? Tick them.

1. I'm so glad for her – the bad comments have stopped.
 2. I must have this new phone; it's awesome!
 3. I have just posted a selfie of me and my sister on the internet.
 4. My phone? I think it's at home, I don't need it very often.
 5. When I've got a problem, I can talk to my parents.
 6. I can't have dinner now, Mom! I have to finish this chat first.
 7. Let's meet at the mall at 3 p.m.
